

Daniel Arias Aranda, Guest Editor of the Sustainability Journal

21/04/2021

Daniel Arias Aranda, a full professor at the University of Granada and teacher at the Faculty of Labor Relations and Human Resources, is the Guest Editor of the international journal Sustainability for the special issue “Innovation Management and Entrepreneurship in Sustainability”.

Call for papers (CFP) is opened for this special issue. Manuscripts should be submitted at www.mdpi.com. For submission, you must register and log in. Once you are registered, LINK: click here to go to the submission form -> http://https://login.mdpi.com/login?_target_path=https%3A%2F%2Fsusy.mdpi.com%2Fuser%2F

The deadline for submissions is on 15th March 2022. Accepted submissions will be published continuously in the journal as soon as they are accepted.

This special issue belongs to the section “Economic and Business Aspects of Sustainability”, the oldest section of the journal. This section covers multi-fields of science concerned with Economic, Business and Management, improving and sharing the knowledge base in an effort to move towards sustainability. The main scope of the section is to stimulate cross-sectoral exchange for the development of new policies, new technologies, new products, and new awareness towards a new sustainability-oriented society.

Sustainability has become a crucial issue for entrepreneurial developments, humanitarian disasters caused by global warming, the need to create innovation frameworks for entrepreneurship in sustainability, and the importance of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Therefore, the main objective of this special issue is to cover these areas.

Sustainability is an international, academic, and open access journal of environmental, cultural, economic, and social sustainability of human beings. It provides an advanced forum for studies related to sustainability and sustainable development. It is a highly ranked journal in JCR (Journal Citation Report).